

Calore vivente

Living warmth

14-17 Settembre 2017

Convegno internazionale annuale
della Sezione di Medicina

Goetheanum

Nel mio cuore irradia la forza del Sole Nella mia anima
agisce il calore del mondo.

Voglio respirare
la forza del Sole.

Voglio sentire
il calore del mondo.
La forza del Sole colma il
mio essere
Il calore del mondo mi
compenetra

Rudolf Steiner, 1923, GA 268

Cari amici della medicina antroposofica,

Siete caldamente invitati al Convegno annuale!

Iniziamo quest'anno un nuovo ciclo di conferenze sull'argomento del calore. Il cosmo si è sviluppato dal calore. La nostra individualità più profonda e creativa vive e opera nel tepore del nostro corpo.

L'organizzazione del calore umano si sviluppa nel corso della vita e il suo ritmo giorno-notte riflette la presenza dell'Io nel corpo. La sua attività è aumentata in caso di febbre mentre, d'altro canto, i malati di cancro manifestano un'organizzazione del calore alterata. Sulla soglia della nascita come su quella della morte, una prudente attenzione al calore è di grande importanza terapeutica.

Oggi la comunità degli esseri umani si è resa responsabile del surriscaldamento della terra. L'antroposofia ci fornisce molti spunti su come poter sviluppare una connessione interiore con l'atmosfera della terra e la relazione della terra con il sole. Allo stesso modo, ci può fare da guida per affrontare in modo terapeutico il calore nel paziente, per esempio quando abbiamo a che fare con la febbre. Dalle terapie esterne alla terapia con il vischio, che quest'anno compie 100 anni, la medicina antroposofica ci offre una messe di possibilità terapeutiche per i disturbi relativi all'organizzazione del calore.

Il fulcro delle conferenze saranno i cinque "Care Themen" della Sezione di Medicina, così come le grandi sfide terapeutiche dei nostri tempi, visti sotto l'aspetto inter professionale del calore. World Space è lo spazio per brevi presentazioni di lavoro e d'iniziative, riceveremo con piacere le iscrizioni entro il 15 luglio presso worldspace@ifaam.org. Vorremmo che il lavoro sull'argomento del nostro convegno fosse corale, che approfondisse la nostra comprensione e aumentasse le nostre competenze terapeutiche, con oltre 50 seminari interdisciplinari e specialistici. Sabato, dopo una performance di euritmia, concluderemo la serata con una festa sulla terrazza del Goetheanum.

Vi aspettiamo!

Matthias Girke e Georg Soldner

a nome del collegio della Coordinazione Internazionale per la Medicina Antroposofica/IKAM:

Andreas Arendt, Roland Bersdorf, Laura Borghi, Dagmar Brauer, Marion Debus René de Winter, Jan Feldmann, Oliver Friedländer, Tanja Geib, Jan Göschel, Aglaja Graf, Rolf Heine, Hartmut Horn, Andreas Jäschke, Kirstin Kaiser, Ellen Keller, Helmut Kiene, Gunver Kienle, Manfred Kohlhase, Petra Kühne, Stefan Langhammer, David Martin, Elma Pressel, Julia Renkl, Sabine Ringer, Alexander Schadow, Stefan Schmidt-Troschke, Heike Sommer and Anna Sophia Werthmann

Seminari A

Martedì 17.00-18.30, Venerdì, 11.15-12.45

Sabato, 11.15-12.45 e 15.30-16.00.

Le quattro unità di ogni seminario sono susseguenti

1. Understanding warmth as the key to Anthroposophic Medicine. Four units of 1.5 hours each: • W1: Why is warmth a substance? (Introductory lecture) • W2: Thermogenic therapeutic substances (rosemary, ginger, mustard, etc.) • W3: Fever in paediatrics • W4: Cancer, mistletoe, warmth. Introductory lecture, keynote presentations, group discussions, joint exercises, scientific study results, concrete therapeutic recommendations. Dr med. Helmut Kiene, physician, Freiburg, DE; Dr med. Gunver Sophia Kienle, physician, Freiburg, DE; Dr med. Jan Vagedes, physician, Filderstadt, DE; Dr med. Tido von Schön-Angerer, physician, Geneva, CH; Prof. Dr med. David Martin, specialist in child and adolescent medicine, paediatric endocrinology and diabetology, Tübingen, DE (German, English)

2. The invisible human being in us as the basis of the warmth organism. Studies and exercises. With the practical application of the knowledge about the I-currents, we will learn to experience the action of the invisible human being in us. A contribution to development, prevention and therapy. Dr med. Kathrin Studer-Senn, physician, Sargs, CH (German, Russian)

3. How can nutrition stimulate and support the warmth processes? The I incarnates in warmth in the human being as a being of warmth. Where do we find warmth in human beings in their physical, living, soul and spiritual part? The role of nutrition in support for these warmth processes will be addressed. The importance of the ripeness of fruits and individual foodstuffs. An interactive workshop with presentations, discussion as well as tastings. Dr Jasmin Peschke, graduate (diploma) nutrition scientist, Dornach, CH; Anita Pedersen, graduate (diploma) nutrition scientist,

Herdwangen-Schoenach, DE; Ela Wallner, non-medical practitioner, Munich, DE (German, English)

4. Le terapie esterne nella cura dell'organismo di calore.

Viene spiegata e approfondita l'importanza delle terapie fisiche nella cura della persona malata e del suo organismo di calore sulla base della comprensione antroposofica dell'essere umano. Allo stesso tempo, i partecipanti riceveranno un'introduzione all'apprendimento delle terapie grazie all'esperienza pluriennale dell'infermiera Carla Menato presso la Casa di Salute Raphael.

Dr. Stefano Gasperi, medico, Trento, Italia; Carla Menato, infermiera, Castello Tesino (Tn), Italia (in tedesco e italiano)

5. Learning parenting: tools to support healthy development in the first three years of life.

We will teach tools to support parents during pregnancy and the first three years of life from a medical and educational perspective, building on the dynamic of “walking, speaking and thinking”. We look forward to international participants who are invited to contribute their professional experience from their own cultural sphere!

Dr med. Stefan Schmidt-Troschke, paediatrician, Berlin, DE; Birgit Krohmer, kindergarten teacher; eurythmist, Freiburg, DE

(German, English)

6. Parenting training during pregnancy, the postpartum period and early childhood.

A social environment with appropriate action, reaction and structure for the being of the child in the initial period of life has a crucial influence on health and behaviour throughout the whole of life. The goal of the workshop is to learn and practise methodological elements for parenting training: baby preparatory course, parent course on the third day of life, play space for children – learning space for parents.

Dr med. Christoph Meinecke, paediatrician, psychotherapist, Berlin, DE; Cristina Meinecke, parent counselling, home management, Berlin, DE

(German, English)

7. The nature of the child and warmth. The work will focus on a presentation of the crucial importance of the physical, soul and spiritual warmth situation for the healthy development of the child. In the interdisciplinary team from the perspective of Anthroposophic Medicine, Waldorf education and the “fine arts”, practice-relevant information, exercises and case studies will be discussed together.

Dr med. Silke Schwarz, physician; kindergarten and school physician, Swisttal, DE; Almut Bockemühl, germanist, Dornach, CH; Dr med. Angelika Wiehl, education expert, Alfter, DE (German, English)

8. Therapeutically effective warmth processes through meditation, intercession and prayer. Physical warmth which can be measured with the thermometer and those warmth qualities produced by soul and spiritual activity interpenetrate in the human warmth organism. The work will focus on the associated health-promoting effects. Dr med. Michaela Glöckler, section head emeritus for medicine at the Goetheanum, Dornach, CH (German, English)

9. Understanding the warmth meditation through eurythmy. The etheric streams of Rudolf Steiner’s six subsidiary exercises together with “I think speech” provide the basis for the use of the warmth meditation. With the “TAO” the understanding of the “etheric heart chakra” is deepened. Dr med. Harald Haas, psychiatrist and psychotherapist, Bern, CH; Theodor Hundhammer, eurythmy therapist, Epsach, CH (German)

10. The importance of warmth in anthroposophically extended therapy. Basics, mode of action, applications. We encounter warmth in various manifestations in the anthroposophical understanding of the human being, in embryology, in the specific diagnosis, in therapy and in social interaction. We will look at these aspects from the perspective of the various therapies and seek to map out common features. A warm invitation to all therapists to consider these questions together. Elma Pressel, non-medical practitioner, trainer in massage as developed by Dr med. Simeon Pressel, Stuttgart, DE; Peter Altmeyer, osteopath DOMRO, DPO, Salem, DE; Jacqueliene Pieper, physiotherapist, occupational physiotherapist, Pratval, CH (German, English, Dutch)

11. Experiencing warmth in substance, in human encounter and in meditation. Touching various materials and areas of the human body transmits specific experiences of warmth. Equally, warmth is differentiated in social interaction. Numerous meditations from Rudolf Steiner are centred on the subject of warmth. We will aim to perceive and describe these various warmth qualities and make them usable for therapy. Rolf Heine, nurse, Filderstadt, DE (German, English)

12. The warmth meditation as instrument for the development of a new sense of warmth. The warmth meditation as path for the development of different qualities of perception in warmth. Etheric physiology/organology of the development of new sensory perceptions: from the chakras through the subsidiary exercises to the warmth meditation. The special position of the warmth meditation in Rudolf Steiner's life work in this respect. Practice relevance in therapeutic situations. Dr med. Henrik Szóke, physician, Pilisszentkereszt, HU; Jaimen McMillan, Spacial Dynamics® teacher, Schuylerville, USA; Christina Spitta, physician, Bad Liebenzell, DE (German, English)

13. Warmth and trust in collaboration. Contemporary eurythmy exercises to promote a mindful team culture. Sonja Zausch MA, social eurythmist, Dornach, CH (German, English)

14. Warmth processes in the production of anthroposophic pharmaceuticals. In this workshop the importance of the warmth processes for substances and their action will be illustrated through an experience of the lower and higher warmth levels in pharmaceutical production. A workshop with practical demonstrations. Heike Friedländer, graduate (diploma) pharmacist, Kühlungsborn, DE; Salete Martinez-Klett, pharmacist, Schwäbisch Gmünd, DE (German)

15. Analogia tra l'insorgere dei cicloni e dei tumori, il vischio, il vortice e l'organismo di calore.

Animali diversi gestiscono il metabolismo del calore (generazione, preservazione, eliminazione del calore) in modi differenti:

hanno “strategie” nello sviluppo dell'organismo di calore animale che mostrano come l'animale sia sempre in grado di mantenere il proprio organismo di calore in uno stato di salute e efficienza per la vita nel corpo fisico. Un esempio che aiuta anche nel comprendere la diversità dell'essere umano. Dr Sabrina Menestrina, veterinaria, Udine, Italia; Dr Wilbert Beyer, veterinario, Jaerna, SE; Dr Claudio Elli, veterinario, Milano, Italia; Dr Laura Zamboni, veterinaria, Belluno, Italia (Tedesco, Italiano)

16. The heart as warmth organ: the therapeutic importance of warmth in cardiological diseases. The heart is the first organ which is formed in embryonic development. Rudolf Steiner describes it as an organ for which in evolutionary terms there is already a predisposition in the warmth state of so-called Saturn. It is transformed in many different ways in the following evolutionary states. We will look at the sclerosis diseases and their treatment with reference to warmth and develop therapeutic concepts. Dr med. Christoph Kaufmann, physician, Arlesheim, CH; Dr Dr Andreas Fried, physician, Berlin, DE (German, English)

17. The warmth organisation in respiration – disorders and therapeutic instruments (with the focus on lung cancer and pulmonary fibroses). Warmth in the various aspects of its function in the fourfold body will be considered and illuminated with practical reference to the pathology and treatment of lung diseases. The warmth forces form a central therapeutic principle and a distinct treatment approach which we will work on (partly in small groups). Dr med. Christian Grah, specialist for internal medicine and pulmonology, Berlin, DE; Dr med. Eva Streit, specialist for internal medicine and pulmonology, Arlesheim, CH (German, English)

18. Mistletoe therapy in interdisciplinary oncology. Mistletoe therapy with its possible uses in various types and stages of tumour – subcutaneous, intravenous, intralesional – is the focus of the workshop. Here the important thing is the joint work of all the therapeutic professions in making mistletoe effective so that possibilities for supporting the warmth organism through nursing, art therapy, etc. will also be shown. Dr med. Sebastian Schlott, physician, Filderstadt, DE;

(German, English)

19. The status of warmth in anthroposophically extended oncology: mistletoe, fever, hyperthermia. The importance of the warmth organism in tumour treatment; care and challenge; the importance of the chronological coordination and combination of oncological treatments. Structure: contributions, case studies and exchange of experiences. Dr Maurice Orange MSc, physician, Arlesheim, CH; Dr med. Reiner Penter, specialist for internal medicine, Arlesheim, CH (German, English, Dutch)

20. The relationship between warmth and anthroposophical art therapy in cancer patients. The support of cancer patients with art therapy reveals how artistic processes take hold of the individual (I) forces, generate warmth envelopes and stimulate essential soul processes so that the illness can “go to sleep”. Quantitative and qualitative parameters change. Wellbeing is generated in the person. Theoretical and practical experience. Luz Myriam Trivino MD, anthroposophic medical doctor and plastic artist, Cali, CO; Maya Moussa, art therapist, Barcelona, ES; Katia Villalobos C MD, physician, Cali, CO (German, English, Spanish)

21. Physical, soul and spiritual warmth processes in the human organism – treatment methods of eurythmy therapy in oncology. Eurythmy therapy exercise series in various oncological diseases. Selection and structure of the exercises. Pirkko Ollilainen, eurythmy therapist, Grötzingen, DE; Dr med. Sheila Grande, physician, Rio de Janeiro, BR (German)

22. Warmth processes through eurythmy therapy in cancer rehabilitation. Presentation of patient experience and experiences with warmth processes at a physical, psychological and existential level. Practical eurythmy therapy exercises and discussion about corresponding studies carried out at the Vidar Clinic in Jaerna (Sweden). Annica Alvenäng MA, eurythmy therapist, Jaerna, SE; Elisabeth Broager Grön MA, eurythmy therapist, Jaerna, SE (German, English)

23. Warmth processes in therapeutic work using the example of depression – the different effects of psychotherapy and art therapy as well as their consonance. Insights into aetiology and psychotherapy will be given in psychological sketches of the clinical picture of depression as well as in case reviews. The importance of the element warmth can be experienced. Particular attention will be paid to methods and questions of art therapy and their modes of action brought to experience through small artistic exercises. Ellen Keller, graduate (diploma) psychologist, psychological psychotherapist, Saarbrücken, DE; Johanna Gunkel BA, art therapist, BVAKT, graduate (diploma) designer, Cologne, DE (German, English)

24. Working with Trauma and Fragmentation at the Threshold.

A medical, psychotherapeutic and art therapy approach based on anthroposophy. The way the members of the human being work into each other is seriously disturbed by trauma. How can the above therapies work with the warmth organisation for their reintegration? Case examples – from facilitators and participants also welcomed. Michael Evans MD, physician and adult teacher, Stroud, UK; Marah Evans, psychotherapist, art therapy, supervisor-trainer, Stroud, UK (English)

25. Development of anxieties in school children through teaching methodology.

School anxiety can also arise through the unartistic presentation of intellectual knowledge and through taking insufficient account of the physical, soul and spiritual individuality of the child. It damages the development of the physical senses and etheric organs and the unfolding of the rhythmical system and thus has an effect on the course of the whole life. We will work on artistic and psychotherapeutic possibilities of healing.

Ad Dekkers, psychologist, psychotherapist, Bilthoven, NL; Jacques Meulman, Waldorf teacher and psychologist, Amsterdam, NL; Jill Meulman, eurythmy therapist, Amsterdam, NL (German, English, Dutch)

26. The vulnerable person and warmth – vulnerability and resilience. On the basis of the phenomena of vulnerability and warmth we will work on their specific qualities in the nursing fields in people with infections, the elderly and people with oncological diseases. The various aspects will be deepened through experience with case studies and selected external treatments as well as eurythmy. Graduate (diploma) nurse, RN, MAS Monika Layer, nursing teacher, expert in anthroposophic nursing/RE IFAN, Wängi, CH; Graduate (diploma) nurse, RN Isabella Herr, director of nursing, Klinik Arlesheim AG, Arlesheim, CH; Rachel Mäder-Lis, eurythmist, Ittigen, CH; Lic. phil. RN Ursa Neuhaus, graduate (diploma) nurse, teacher, expert AP IFAN, Bern, CH (German)

27. Anthroposophic palliative medicine. How do we support patients with advanced diseases? How do we support them at the end of their earth life? Which therapies have proved themselves in anxiety, restlessness, pain, fatigue, dyspnoea and gastrointestinal disorders? What questions about meaning arise in connection with the longing for death and fear of death? Palliative medicine is multiprofessional; we intend to concern ourselves with these subjects from a medical and nursing perspective and also approach the inner path of the palliatively ill person to the threshold as a spiritual path of development.

Dr med. Matthias Girke, specialist for internal medicine, head of the Medical Section, Dornach, CH; Britta Wilde, nurse, Brieselang, DE (German)

28. Il rafforzamento del calore interno nella sofferenza dell'anima e nelle malattie psichiatriche mediante l'utilizzo dei "processi di colore": una nuova sfida. Analisi di casi clinici e di lavori di pittura pratica con analisi delle esperienze personali.

Dr. Patrizia Anderle, psichiatra, Padova, Monselice, Italia; Annamaria Saccuman, arte-terapeuta, Padova, Italia (Inglese, Italiano)

29. La stimolazione del calore mediante la terapia musicale nelle cure palliative.

Partendo dalla descrizione medica di un paziente in situazione palliativa, e in particolare dai sintomi di ansia e dolore, tratteremo la connessione con l'importanza del calore e le opportunità offerte dalla terapia musicale per stimolare l'organismo di calore. Utilizzeremo aspetti della nostra comprensione dell'essere umano, esempi portati dai pazienti e la nostra stessa percezione del nostro lavoro.

Laura Piffaretti, arte-terapista (ED) specializzanda in terapia musicale (antroposofica); Meggen, Svizzera; Dr Stefan Obrist, specialista di medicina interna, specializzando in medicina palliativa, Zurigo, Svizzera (Tedesco, Italiano)

30. The transformation of the life forces through warmth. Practical meditation exercises, carried out in stages from imagination through inspiration to intuition, for therapeutic practice. Dr med. Robert Kempenich, physician, Strasbourg, FR (German, English, French)

Seminari B e gruppi professionali

Venerdì e sabato, 17.00–18.30

Le due unità di ogni seminario sono susseguenti

31. Rudolf Steiner's warmth course. In 1920, Rudolf Steiner gave a course mainly for the teachers of the Waldorf school which was devoted to the nature of warmth as well as the elements and types of ether, primarily from the perspective of physics. This group will address the most important motifs of the course which makes warmth accessible as a "border phenomenon".

Johannes Kühl, physicist, head of the Natural Science Section at the Goetheanum, Dornach, CH (German)

32. Warming up and cooling down of a medico-therapeutic social organism: organisational and quality development. Social organisms can radiate a great deal of warmth, but also coldness. This workshop will consider the possibilities offered by organisational and quality development to shape these processes. As our methodological instrument we will use the “compass” of the twelve zodiac forces. Dr Gerhard Herz, consultant and auditor, Gröbenzell, DE; Sabine Ringer, manager of Haus Morgenstern, Stuttgart, DE (German, English)

33. Warmth of plants – plants of warmth: warmth processes in plants and human beings. Thyme roasts in the burning summer sun crouched close to the earth, its reduced leaves containing powerful aromatic essential oils... Meadowsweet juts upwards in moist meadows, spraying its enticing scent in the warmth of the evening from its cloud-like white flowers... Our aim is to obtain a greater understanding of these and other medicinal plants in joint observation. Dr med. Tobias Daumüller, specialist for internal medicine, Heidenheim, DE; Dr med. Ulrich Geyer, specialist for internal medicine, Heidenheim, DE; Dr med. Andreas Laubersheimer, general practitioner, Heidenheim, DE (German, English)

34. Warmth: a bio-psycho-social exploration of its role in the healing process. We will explore a variety of clinical studies which show the ways that physical experiences of warmth influence physiological functions (like immune system activity and allergy), psychological measures (pain thresholds, anorexic eating patterns) and social interaction (social sensitivity, group cohesion). Each session will include demonstrations of applicable nursing practices. Adam Blanning MD, physician, Denver, CO, USA; Elizabeth Sustick RN, anthroposophic nurse specialist, Northampton, MA, USA (English)

35. Transformation processes through metal colour light. Metal colour light therapy stimulates supportive and profoundly vitalising warmth processes which can transform traumas at a physiological and soul and spiritual level. Practising perception, discussion about experiences, case studies, information about the development of metal colour light therapy and – training. Friedlinde Meier, metal colour light therapist / eurythmy therapist, Bad Liebenzell, DE;

Hazel Adams, art therapist, MCLT therapist, Westbury on Trym, Bristol, UK;
Holger Schimanke, metal colour light therapist, singing therapist, Filderstadt,
DE (German, English)

36. The action of oil dispersion baths on the warmth organism of the human being. Introduction to the basic action of oil dispersion baths. Practical demonstrations. Comprehensive work on questions from participants on the conference theme. Reinhold Schön, medical hydrotherapist, Bad Boll, DE;
Larissa Schön, teacher and therapist for Bothmer gymnastics, Bad Boll, Baden-Württemberg (German, Russian)

37. Freedom, self-determination and morality of the anthroposophic non-medical practitioner. “Why should my action serve the public good less if I have done it out of love than if I have done it only for the reason that I consider it my duty to serve the public good?” We aim to pursue these and other questions as anthroposophic non-medical practitioners and investigate them together. Alexander Schadow, non-medical practitioner for psychotherapy, Nienhagen, DE; Michaelmas Voelkel, non-medical practitioner, eurythmy therapist, Celle, DE (German)

38. Moving sun forces. Moving sun forces – Spacial Dynamics® exercises and hands-on techniques that uplift, lighten, and warm. Jaimen McMillan, director, Spacial Dynamics® Institute, Schuylerville, USA (German, English)

39. Healing form drawing. In the search for new perspectives, to stimulate the self-healing forces, to awaken lost enthusiasm, therapeutic form drawing offers very effective possibilities with the simplest means. The workshop will show how we can succeed in forming the drawing person through form drawing. Intensive own activity generates inner warmth. Peter Büchi, form drawing practitioner, adult education teacher, Stäfa, CH (German, English, French)

40. Creative speech which ensouls, warms through! The warming action of the spoken word can be experienced using poetry and speech exercises. The focus is on artistic work. Kirstin Kaiser, therapeutic speech practitioner, Basel, CH (German)

41. Singing therapy in trauma therapy. Through the basic singing exercises of the School of Uncovering the Voice with sound, breathing and speech sounds, the process of renewal and deepening in the relationship between soul and body is enabled, thus providing significant support in working through trauma. We will work on basic aspects of these exercises on the basis of our understanding of the human being. Thomas Adam, singer, singing therapist, Bochum, DE; Dr med. Corinna Falk, specialist for psychosomatic medicine, Maulbronn, DE (German, English, Spanish)

42. Warmth in movement – the various layers of warmth generation in movement therapy. Warmth arises through movement. But whether a movement is warm or cold is not subject to the physical body. Using some exercises from Bothmer gymnastics, we will concern ourselves with warmth and movement with reference to the different layers of the human being. Stephan Thilo, Bothmer gymnast, physiotherapist, Emmendingen, DE (German, English, Russian)

43. Patients' competences and health competences. Governments and health systems want patients to bear more responsibility for their own health and health choices, not only in times of illness but also how to remain as healthy as possible. How are the necessary competences acquired and what kind of competences are needed? René de Winter MA, president, Leidschendam, NL; Marjolein Doesburg-van Kleffens, president, Zeist, NL; Wieneke Groot, consultant, Zeist, NL; Renate Sippel MA, director, Kumberg, AT (English)

44. Loheland gymnastics/movement training. In this workshop we intend to move in many different ways and concern ourselves with the subject of warmth through enthusiastic activity. The warmth processes are stimulated through movement progressions in rhythmical breathing which promote individual personal development and form the basis for healthy social processes. Let yourself be warmed and moved! Sabine Podehl, Loheland lecturer (R), gymnastics teacher, sport teacher, Altusried, DE; Simone Koring, gymnastics/Loheland movement therapy, Kassel, DE (German, English)

45. International meeting of specialist physician groups. Annual exchange of views of the specialist physician groups on current developments with regard to work on content, further training, recruitment of young talent, international networking. For all specialist physicians or assistant physicians interested in a specialist training. Dr med. Marion Debus, physician (haematology/oncology), Berlin, DE (German, English)

46. ANTHROMEDICS – the Internet portal on anthroposophic medicine. The Anthromedics project has been directly attached to the Medical Section since 2017: the latest position regarding restructuring and content, and an invitation to become involved. The workshop is addressed particularly to specialist physicians and experts in the therapeutic and nursing professions. Dr med. Matthias Girke, specialist for internal medicine, head of the Medical Section, Dornach, CH (German, English)

47. Meeting of professional groups of the Young Medics Forum and Young Anthroposophic Nursing. Using selected texts from Rudolf Steiner's so-called "bridge lectures" (GA 202/given in November and December 1920) we will work on the subject of "physiological and spiritually moral warmth". Eva Lutz, medical student, Hanover, DE (German, English, Swedish)

48. The image of Anthroposophic Medicine in the public sphere. What does the current image of AM require in order to continue to develop its cultural impulse coherently in the public sphere? Heike Sommer MA, International Coordination of Press and Public Relations Work, Dornach, CH; Simon Bednarek MD, physician, Burringbar, AU; Theo Stepp, head of corporate communications, Schwäbisch Gmünd, DE; Barbara Wais, chief executive, DAMiD, Berlin, DE (German, English)

49. Vademecum of external treatments. Presentation of website and joint exchange of views. Bernhard Deckers, nurse, Filderstadt, DE (German)

50. How can we present eurythmy therapy in public appropriately for our time? The 100th anniversary of eurythmy therapy is approaching. In the two workshop units we will work together on the question of how in future we can present eurythmy therapy in public worldwide. How do we place ourselves as therapists in the public sphere? How do we work with greater strength through our joint organ, the Eurythmy Therapy Grouping? Kristian Schneider, eurythmy therapist, Alfter, DE; Adalheidur Olafsdottir, eurythmy therapist, Eyrarbakki, IS (German, English)

51. Practice fields in eurythmy therapy. Working exchange of views with eurythmy therapy colleagues in their own practice field: what foundations in our understanding of the human being form the basis for our respectively own practice field? What observations of movement characteristics are revealed in which diseases? What should most urgently be worked on in our own practice field? Mareike Kaiser MSc, eurythmy therapist, Graz, AT; (German, English)

A council meeting to prepare the general meeting of members will take place on Friday at the same time. Christina Spitta, physician, Spacial® Dynamics movement therapist and trainer, Bad Liebenzell, DE (German, English)

Campagna manifesti e iscrizione

Mostra di manifesti sulla ricerca: presentazioni dei poster sulla ricerca in medicina antroposofica saranno a vostra disposizione nella Schreinereisaal per l'intera durata del Convegno. Per favore, inviate i risultati della vostre ricerche in forma di un abstract strutturato di una pagina – quesito, materiali e metodi, risultati, conclusioni – entro il 1° agosto 2017 all'attenzione del Dr. Daniel Krüerke, Klinik Arlesheim AG, Forschungsabteilung, Arlesheim, Svizzera. Formato dei poster: 118 x 84 cm. Email: Daniel.Krueerke@klinik-arlesheim.ch.

Gli abstract accettati saranno pubblicati per la Convegno in forma di depliant e successivamente pubblicati in Der Merkurstab nella sezione “Notizie dalla scienza e dalla ricerca”.

Poster su progetti medico-sociali da tutto il mondo.

Quest'anno al Convegno annuale daremo il benvenuto a iniziative provenienti da tutti i paesi e tutti i continenti. Progetti e contributi all'illuminazione culturale saranno presentate nel WORLD SPACE venerdì pomeriggio. Chiunque fosse interessato può fare domanda per presentare il proprio contributo (3-7 minuti) fino al 15 luglio (titolo, nazione, riassunto).

I poster meritevoli (in inglese, per favore!) saranno in mostra e in seguito pubblicati sul sito della Sezione di medicina. Non vediamo l'ora di ricevere idee dall'intero movimento della medicina antroposofica. Contatto: worldspace@ifaam.org
